Miss Erna Wolfe

Dedication

Blessed with good looks and straight-forward American agressiveness, Miss Erna Wolfe, the beloved Class Adviser of 1941, has taken the inglorious position of guiding hand in all our class ventures. From our first Sophomore dues drive to the last farewell at Reception her presence has been deeply felt and warmly appreciated.

She has devoted spare time galore to socials, dramatic presentations, and to the plans for our unforgetable commencement week. But more than that, her understanding of fellows and girls, her helpful advice, and her encouraging smile have made her what a real class mentor ought to be, "Class Mother."

Then it is to you, Miss Wolfe, as our Class Mother, that we of the Class of 1941 dedicate our Senior Memoirs and sincerely pledge our whole-hearted thanks, hoping that your memories of 1941 will be as happy as ours will be of you.

These are the faculty friends who have moulded our destinies through three fruitful years.

Senior Class History

The Class of 1941 — the class which, in its Senior year, won the Drama Night Competition, defeated Salem in football for the first time in eighteen years, and won the North Shore Class A Basketball Championship — officially started its activities in Beverly High School by electing in October 1938, the following officers: President, Lawrence McLean; Vice-President, Prudence Preston; Secretary, Priscilla Chapman; and Treasurer, Frank Cronin. Later on, the class presented as its contribution to the annual Drama Night a one-act farce, The Pampered Darling, Carolyn Story winning the award for the best individual acting. When the many members had become better acquainted with each other, the following people were elected to the Student Council: Prudence Preston, Janet Wallis, Frank Cronin, Lawrence McLean, Richard Southwick, and Thomas Stott.

In preparation for the Junior Year, a new class election was held with the following results: President, Lawrence McLean; Vice-President, Richard Southwick; Secretary, Prudence Preston; and Treasurer, Jack Mazzotti. This year the class presented a more serious play for Drama Night, Jazz and Minuet. June Ward, who did a truly outstanding piece of acting, was given the award for the best performance. As Juniors, the class elected Dorothy Naugler and Jack Mazzotti to the Student Council, bringing the number from this class in that organization to eight. Toward the last of this year Lawrence McLean was elected President of the Student Council by both the Sophomore and Junior classes.

As usual at the Senior Assembly, six members of the Junior class were given the outstanding honor of being admitted to the Gamma Chapter of the National Honor Society. The members of this class thus honored were: Mildred Reynolds, Constance Kessaris, Dorothy Naugler, Miriam Ayers, Edward Holmes, and Bertram Glovsky. This brought to a close the activities of the class for this year.

Early in its Senior year the Class of 1941 elected the following class officers: President, Richard Southwick; Vice-President, Frank Cronin; Secretary, Prudence Prseton; and Treasurer, Jack Mazzotti. Also, as Seniors, individuals from this class filled most of the responsible positions in the various school organizations. Lawrence McLean, president of the Student Council, who presided at all the assemblies; Thomas Casey, president of the House of Delegates; Malcolm Barron, captain of the Safety Patrol; Adrian Wilson, editor-in-chief of the Senior Memoirs; Dorothy Naugler, editor-in-chief of the Aegis; and Albert Nash, editor-in-chief of the B. H. S. News have all worked hard in following out their respective duties.

This year at long last the class of 1941 won the annual Drama Night Competition by presenting Guilt Edged, a fast-moving comedy with a Western background. Once again June Ward won the award for the best performance, this time for her presentation of the leading roll, the young girl, Nancy Allen.

Truly, as we members of the class of 1941 look back at our career in Beverly High School, we can say that we have enjoyed an exciting and eventful three years. One thing which will remain above all else in the mind of each one of us is the ever present help and guidance of our tireless class adviser, Miss Erna Wolfe.

In the Crystal Ball

Following the directions of the wizened, old crystal-gazer, I stared fixedly into the murky, swirling mists of the crystal ball. I stared — and very slowly, like the passing of a fog, the curtain drew away, and I was looking into the future.

As the scene cleared, I recognized the Senate Chamber at Washington, and I gazed with astonishment at the tall, lank individual waving his arms in the air and shouting, "—and it has been proved that, in order to give every student a fair chance at being successful, every high school must be equipped with the Indispensable Tool!"

"Well, I'll be——" I thought, "that's Eddie Holmes, or I hate to talk!"

Quicker than this thought itself, the scene changed, and I beheld a spacious gym, full of blank-looking females staring intently at a melee of madly gyrating arms and legs. I needed no more clues as to the identity of the human pinwheels. The more violent, I recognized as Dot "Cherry" Naugler, and her colleague, Helen "Poopsie" Little.

Again the scene was changing, and there before my eyes, was a familiar face in an unfamiliar setting. Seated in a huge, leather chair, his feet resting on the polished desk, and smoking a large, black cigar, was Earl "Tycoon" Shaw, the current president of the Sneekum-Steelum Investment Co.

The next revelation seemed to be in the form of a group picture. In a violent smock and green tam, I saw Helene Friedman slapping at a viciously colored canvas caught in the tide of Surrealism. Malcom Barron, his usually glossy hair hanging limp, was pounding madly on a pair of trap drums, while the crowd danced and cheered him, the star soloist of Sagorsky's Moonshiners featured by the Italain Night Club. "Bud" Conley was wringing his hands (and his hat) as he reported, play by play, over the ether, the annual brawl between the Knob Hill "Bruisers" and the Happy Hop "Dudes." Don "Sherlock Holmes" Grant was creeping bravely (?) up a dilapidated staircase, with a flashlight in one hand, and a thousand page volume entitled, "How to Win Your Way Out of a Haunted House, and How To Influence Ghosts to Let You Do It." in the other. "William Fritz" Williams and Henry Resnick, surrounded by weird shaped bottles and apparatus all issuing clouds of steam and foul smells, were laboring, through the medium of chemistry, to find out "Who's Yehudi?". And last, but not least of these brief glimpses, was Bert "I Worry All The Time" Glovsky, Junior partner of Glovsky, Glovsky, Glovsky, and Glovsky, Attorneys-at-Law, bent wearily over a huge law book, bearing the title "1001 Years in the Supreme Court." (He couldn't figure out what the matter was, can you?) Tom Casey, still a rabid Democrat, was saying to a law colleague, "Things were different when Mr. Curly was Governor!" Then I almost reached for a nickle as I saw Georgie Bane with a big, lined book in one hand, and a pencil in the other, but I realized that he was no longer the dues-collector for the College Club, but a Certified Public Accountant. Miriam Ayers, in a frothy white, strapless gown, was accompanying John Cunningham, and his violin. I harkened, and I could hear the sweet, delicate strains of "Johnson Rag" floating softly out into the still evening. Harris "Guts" Toll, representative of M.G.M., (Movies Growing Mould) was benevolently handing an "Archibald," the covered award for acting, to June Ward, who was so overcome by tears of joy, that three ushers soon appeared, each bearing a bucket held respectfully before him.

Again the mists parted, and this time I realized that I was gazing down the deck of a trim battleship. As I looked, a handsome, young man, with wavy, black hair, whom I judged to be at least an Admiral, sauntered aft, with a girl on each arm, and three in his wake. He was just saying to his faithful followers, "Yes, I'm Rear-Admiral Cronin, Commander of the good ship 'Cherchez La Femme' ".

"Well," I thought to myself, "I knew we should have voted Frankie X. Cronin, 'Most Likely to Succeed.' "

Now, these glimpses of what the Fates had in store for the Class of '41, were becoming brief, as if the old, crystal-gazer had decided that my time was up.

There flashed before my eyes a picture of Eugene "Jeep" Driscoll still holding down the same seat in the O. H., and Mayor MeLean——why, no, by Golly, that was old Larry himself, handing out the keys to the Garden City in his father's stead. Beatie Christie was arguing with Barb Ginsberg about a hat in the shape of a small, pine tree, and whether it would be more stylish trimmed with a bird, a squirrel, or a bunch of carrots. Fred McCarthy had Ros "Pepper" Rouse twirled around his neck (part of the dance routine in their new musical show, "Departed With the Breeze"). Dick "Casanova" Southwick was endeavoring to answer in his popular column, "Advise to the Love Lorn—From One Who Knows," a beseeching letter from Charles "Chuck" Osborne, Harvard's Bad Boy. Keith Raymond, in the conservative garb of a Professor of English, was patiently shouting to Adrian Wilson, Editor of the Saturday Evening Post, that the magazine had spelled Abbergofferdaenamagorenbund, the term applied to the 19th German Reich, incorrectly. While Lyndon Moore, Assistant Editor, was trying to calm his chief.

"Heavens," I thought, "this is getting gruesome." But nevertheless, I moved forward on my chair, and waited breathlessly for the next victim, Melvin Cohen about to slip a piece of ice inside an unsuspecting person's collar. Milly Reynolds and Volonta Incampo seemed to be having some difficulty in teaching a group of cross-eyed kiddies to do a cross word puzzle (part of the new system of visual education, I suppose). Prudie Preston and Jack Spillar seemed to be causing quite a sensation as they harmonized mournfully on "Schooldays," gone forever.

This last group had slowly faded in clarity, and now I realized that my last peek into the future was at hand. Strangely enough, this last person who was materializing slowly, seemed to strike a familiar chord. The girl (I assumed it was a girl) had short, wavy, brown hair, and appeared to be scribbling in a small, battered notebook bearing the inscription, "Kalamazoo Krier," in gold letters. The horizon behind her, glowed luridly as the city burned, and the air was shattered with the thunder of twelve roaring bombers overhead. Then the mists closed in, and I was staring into the empty crystal ball.

The memory of the last picture, however, bothered me, and I said to myself, "What a place for a girl. Gee, what a fool she was!"

All of a sudden, the light broke over me, and I exclaimed aloud, "Wait a minute that was me!"

UNDERGRADUATES

History of the Class of '42

With two years at B.H.S. behind us, we look forward to our last as lordly seniors.

In 1939 we came straggling in, clinging desperately to someone we knew. We spent tedious hours trying to solve the locker problem. Our necks were stiff from studying those small but important numbers above each of the classroom doors. As for the confident juniors and seniors — they were just "men of the world," who laughed at our clumsy mistakes.

For our sophomore year we elected:

President, David Werme
Vice-President, Janet Murphy
Secretary, Clinton Clark
Treasurer, John Corning

We first were introduced at Drama Night, giving the one-act comedy Red Carnations with the following cast:

June Story
Daniel McPherson
Willard Dane

We were proud of our first appearance.

Daniel McPherson won a pin for his outstanding performance.

When school opened last September, we were self-assured juniors. Our lockers opened easily. We renewed old acquaintances, gossiped, and even condescended to help those "silly little sophomores."

On student council we were represented by:

Fred Churchley
Alice Dalton
Daniel McPherson
Janet Murphy
David Werme
Warren Wildes

Drama Night found us proudly displaying our talents in an excellent presentation of The Robbery. The members of this year's cast were:

Willard Dame
Sally Ann Adkins
Leon Menkes
Evans Waldron
Priscilla Benjamin

Willard Dane received a pin for his acting.

Something different in socials was our patriotic affair. With the Colony Club Orchestra, and the red, white, and blue decorations, this social reflected the ability of our committee and Miss Kendall.

Our officers this year are:

President, David Werme
Vice-President, Frank Conrad
Secretary, Alice Dalton
Treasurer, John Corning

With high hopes we look forward to our senior year. Ever with us is the memory of these past two years at B. H. S.

History of the Class of 1943

B. H. S. Speaks

The summers and winters of sixteen years have passed over my roof since the class of 1925 trooped over my threshold. Many of my children have already made their mark in the world, but they still look back reminiscently upon the happy days that were spent at B.H.S.

Last September the class of 1943, another group of boys and girls, full of promise for the future, stepped timidly through my doorways——timid at first, perhaps, but not for long. Soon they learned the Do's and Don't's of High School life and started in to build their class into one long to be remembered.

Early in October, with Miss Tasker as their class adviser, the Sophomores elected as their class officers:

President—Nancy Hill
Vice President—Daniel Kelleher
Secretary—Cynthia Knight
Treasurer—Beverly Hull

Soon afterward, the Seniors and Juniors began their Dues Drive, and the Sophomores, not to be outdone, joined enthusiastically, and contributed much to the drive.

At the beginning of the year the Class of '43 felt themselves to be a very small part of the "B-Hive," but as time went on, they were asked to join in the Drama Night Competition.

Although they did not win the banner, they certainly gave the upper-classmen some stiff competition.

The play was a fast-moving comedy called "Elmer," in which the following sophomores took part:

Nancy Hill
Kenneth Kinsman
Patricia Woodward
Mary Louise Morse
Rosamonde Cole
Patricia Sim
Dorothy Dodge
Robert Rogers
Jack Wentzell

For the best acting in the Sophomore class, Kenneth Kinsman was presented with a gold pin which certainly was well deserved.

The Sophomores elected for the Student Council:
Daniel Kelleher, George Little, Lionel Belanger, Allan Lawson, Ruth Woodbury, Nancy Hill

In High School Athletics, both boys and girls of the class of '43 are well represented. To football the class has given:
Paul Ambrefe, (first team); Martin Kelly, Arthur Loranger, Robert MacNamara, Leo Murphy, Theodore Naugler, Chester Ross Clifton Story.

Although Daniel Kelleher and Thomas Rocci are the only boys on the Boys' Basketball Team, an unusually large number of girls went out for the Girls' Team: Deborah Chase, Patricia Churchley, Norma Hilliard, Daisy Melei, Helen Peterson, Mary Petronzio, Grace Smith, Ruth Woodbury.

The newest class of mine has given me a great deal of satisfaction, and should be a credit to its class adviser, Miss Tasker.

The Student Council is composed of eighteen members — eight seniors, six juniors, and six sophomores — each holding his membership until graduation.

This body has the power of acting on all bills passed by the House of Delegates, interpreting the regulations of Congress, and of aiding Mr. Pierce in matters presented by him.

The Council directs the publicity for Drama Night, publishes the B-Hive, helps to plan assemblies, and carries out many other duties.

The Student Council cooperates with both the faculty and the students in developing a spirit of harmony and an appreciation of democratic legislation.

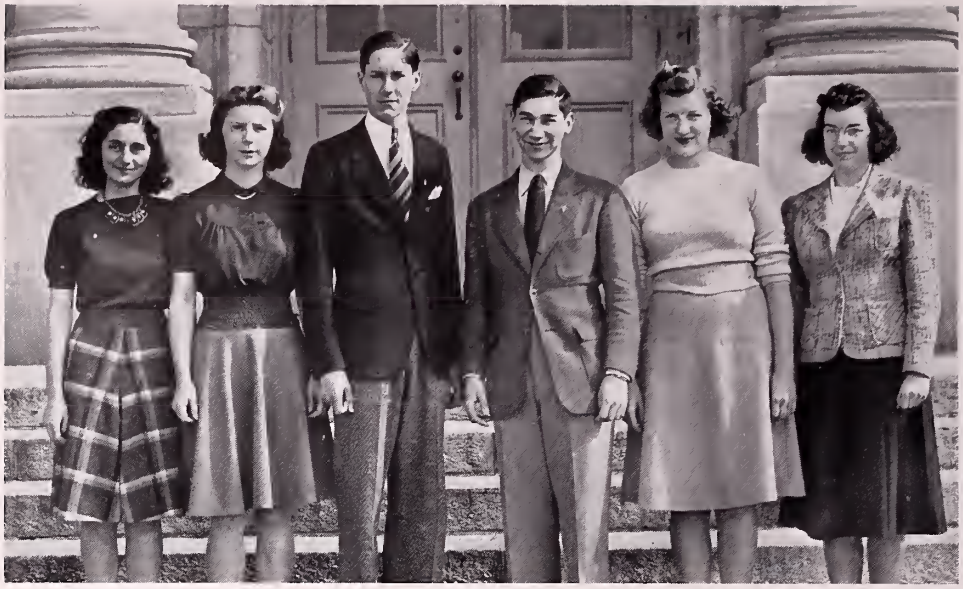
Secretary
RITA LECLAIR

We, the pupils, speak! That is the by-word of the House of Delegates. This body discusses matters of school policy submitted by the home room delegates. After discussion, the matter may be sent to a committee for investigation, or made into a motion to be passed or rejected by the House. If passed by the House, it is sent to the Student Council, from which if it is passed, it is sent to Mr. Pierce for approval or veto. If approved the bill becomes a law of the school. Through this democratic procedure, we, the pupils, speak!

National Honor Society



The members of the Gamma Chapter of the National Honor Society have endeavored throughout this year to uphold the standards of scholarship, leadership, service, and character by which they were chosen. In October they assisted in planning and carrying out the Parents' Night program of the school. Recently, members of this group have been given charge of the information table in the lobby and the collecting of attendance slips.

One of the most important activities of this group is the induction of new members into the chapter in June. This forms one of the most beautiful and inspiring assemblies of the year.

Safety Patrol

Lieutenants

BERTRAM GLOVSKY
VOLONTA INCAMPO
ROSLYN ROUSE
FRANCIS MERRILL

This year's Safety Patrol duties have been carried on as in former years. There is an officers' meeting every Monday morning and a meeting of the whole patrol every month, both usually presided over by Mr. Pierce, the adviser of the squad.

The first duty of the squad is to keep orderly and quiet passing in the corridors. Among the other duties are ushering at school assemblies, plays, concerts, and other outside activities held in the High School.

This year the patrol has new orange badges with black lettering and special orange and black officers' insignia.

Many departments of the school cooperate to publish our school magazine, The Aegis. The advertising is solicited by the business editors who represent the Commercial Department; the Art Department furnishes the cuts; the Literary Board and the English Classes contribute the material; the type-writing classes prepare the copy; and the boys in the Shop print the magazine.

In 1940-41, The Aegis has contained more photographs than ever before.

At the end of the year an award is made for the best story of the year.

The Aegis advisers are: Miss Phinney, Miss Forbes, Miss Brown, Mr. Kimball, and Mr. Bloss.

MR. FRANK ROOT

The B. H. S. News had an unusually successful year in 1940–41. For the Salem game the staff published a noteworthy issue Touchdown, and made enough money to insure the liberal use of cuts throughout the year. With the exceptionally interesting pictures furnished by our staff photographer, Don Marley, the paper has been brightened considerably.

Many of the features of the preceding year were continued. Of these, perhaps "Nosey Jane", "Swing Column", and "Sports Chatter" were the most popular. However, with the coming of the National Defense Program, considerable interest was taken in "Enlistee's War Diary".

Under the able leadership of Albert Nash and Al Zwieker and the careful management of Jack Mazzotti, the paper made its fifteenth year one of thorough news coverage and wide interest.

Senior Memoirs

Editor
ADRIAN WILSON

Assistant Editor
WILLIAM MARTIN

This year the editors of the Senior Memoirs Staff were nominated in a new way. The names were selected by our class adviser Miss Wolfe, Miss Phinney, and the president of our class, Richard Southwick. Other English teachers assisted in the selection, because scholastic standing, reliability, and ability to fulfill the requirements of the position were of prime importance. The ballot was then dtrafted and put to a vote in the home rooms.

Much of the credit for the success of this volume must go to the tireless faculty advisers, Miss Phinney, Miss Higgins, Miss John, Mr. Gardner and Mr. Root, who helped solve the book's literary, advertising, subscription, financial and photographic problems; and to Mr. Bloss, who directed the boys in the print shop.

Band

The 1940-41 B. H. S. Band attired in traditional orange and black uniforms and led by Lillian Overberg, the school's first drum-majorette, made a creditable showing at all football games and led the jubilant two-mile-long parade and snake dance after Beverly's momentous Thanksgiving Day victory over Salem.

On March 18, a Band Assembly marked by clarinet, flute, and trombone solos, by Bertram Chansky, Jack Harrigan and Edwin Ericson, respectively, and a rendition of "Nola" with Murray Surrette assisting the Band on the xylophone, inspired the students.

Credit must go to Mr. Phillips for his patience, perseverance, and skill in preparing and conducting compositions which made the Band's performance successful.

Orchestra

Student Leader—JOHN CUNNINGHAM

Under the direction of Mr. Phillips and John Cunningham, the B. H. S. Orchestra has made a favorable impression at assemblies, on Parents' Night, Drama Night, and at the presentation of the Teacher's Play, "The Admirable Crichton."

Notable among the orchestra's public performances, was that at the Young Peoples' Choral Festival when, under the direction of Guest Conductor Wheeler Beckett of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, these thirty high school musicians united with the combined Beverly High and St. Mary's Glee Clubs, and the Junior Male Choir in a powerful rendition of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord."

Thus has passed another year of orchestra enjoyed by both musicians and audiences.

It contributes to school life with songs at assemblies and other occasions, and tries to provide some social contacts among those interested in choral music.

On February 7, 1941, the Glee Club united in song with the St. Mary's Glee Club and the Junior Male Choir in a Choral Festival. Mr. Wheeler Beckett of Boston conducted the group singing. Mr. Kalmon Novak, the great pianist, played a great variety of classical and popular music.

The Audubon Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Hobbs, is organized for tbose who are interested in Nature. The members, spend the larger part of the time studying birds. In the fall, the club enjoys bird walks. During the winter months, the meetings are held in the school building. At one meeting this year, a collection of birds' nests was shown and their builders discussed.

At another meeting, Miss Roper of the High School Faculty told us about the birds that she saw on a recent trip across the country. The club certainly has had a successful year.

The Beverly High School College Club, under the direction of Miss Sears was founded by a few college-minded students who believed that others would be interested in a broader knowledge of college life.

Through its committees, this club has helped uncertain students to decide upon the college offering most in their field.

Different from any other club, this organization has offered to the few who really desire to continue their scholastic training, a chance to hear speakers who have become successful in their own occupations. The members have participated in round-table discussions with several outstanding speakers, and have enjoyed moving pictures of college activities.

Under the guidance of Miss John, the Commercial Club has had an interesting and enjoyable year. We have visited the Hood Plant in Charlestown, the Maparium and Boston Stock Exchange and enjoyed other pleasant and exciting outings.

We all remember with great admiration the demonstration by Miss Stella Willins, World's Champion Woman Typist.

Our annual play, "College Bread" was a great success. Commercial Lites, our club paper goes to many places in the country.

We have had a grand time together and appreciate the advantages of being members of such an outstanding club with its usefulness combined with recreation.

The Current Events Club was formed in 1938 under the sponsorship of Miss Lorna Tasker. This year it has fourteen members which is just the right size for a discussion group.

In October Miss Roan Orloff, an Esperanto teacher from Boston gave a demonstration of how Esperanto is construeted and explained its value in the present-day world. The members of the club gave a skit which depicted the confusion arising from having so many different languages.

The regular discussions of the club are often heated and always exciting. Members have opportunity to practice extemporaneous speaking, and they learn how to conduct a discussion group according to parliamentary law.

The Dramatic Club, sponsored by Miss Rogers, began the year with a comedy, "Thursday Evening." At other meetings, an Amateur Program gave many a chance to exercise their talents. Mr. Lawrence Howard discussed his experiences in radio work, and contestants from the audience contributed to a program of "Information Please." At the February meeting, Mr. John Hines reviewed scenes from "Life With Father." In March "Ghost Hunters" was presented.

These programs were planned and directed by Barbara Ginsberg assisted by a committee of five chosen each month.

Le Cercle Francais, under the direction of Miss Russell, is open only to students who have completed at least one year of French. This limits the number of members, but all are able to carry on simple conversations in French.

The members enjoy playing games, presenting short skits, and telling stories.

This year students have had the opportunity to correspond with French boys and girls in South America, Canada, Portugal, and possibly France.

This club gives the members a chance to employ everyday French, an opportunity which cannot be offered to any great extent in the regular French classes.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economies Club was organized in 1938 by Miss Louise R. Bates. During 1938–39 the Homc Economics Club enjoyed various outside speakers and informal discussions on sueh subjects as "Textiles," "Good Grooming" and the "Well Mannered Person."

However, because of the desire of the girls to learn a few handicrafts, the club members have worked on handicrafts this year. The handicrafts chosen were knitting, crocheting, braiding rugs, and hooking rugs. Each girl learned and worked on a handicraft during club meetings, ably assisted by Miss Mason.

There are no special requirements for membership except an interest in Home Economics.

This was another successful year for the S.P.Q.R. under Miss Sears' guidance.

The club was divided into two teams which competed in sports and games; the losing team giving a Roman Banquet to the winning team.

The French Club visited the S.P.Q.R. at a successful Valentine Party. The College Club was its guest at the March 4 meeting at which Miss Hutchings from the Museum of Fine Arts spoke on "Roman Daily Life." The Salem and Beverly clubs enjoyed two joint meetings.

These are a few of the many interesting programs in which all the members have participated.

Mathematics Club

The Mathematics Club consisted of three separate organizations.

Members of the Slide Rule Club learned the mathematical calculations which may be performed on the slide rule. This knowledge is useful in engineering, for it saves time in figuring squares, roots, reciprocals, etc. Miss Hett acted as adviser.

The algebra group was made up of juniors and seniors who wished to review their algebra. Miss Chynoweth was the adviser.

Mr. Gardner, having been trained in the Harvard R. O. T. C. assisted the third group in methods of surveying and other interesting field work in mathematics. The meetings were also used for discussion periods in which range finders, sextants, and other instruments were examined.

The Photocraft Club carried on its aim of furthering an interest in photography through talks and actual demonstrations in its meetings. Among the speakers was Mr. Frank Rhuland, teacher at Briscoe, who told of the club's beginning and a few technical points of photography. One of the club's past presidents, Mr. Andrew Oberg gave a comprehensive talk on all the phases of photography at another meeting. Besides these talks the club sponsor and members gave several demonstrations of photographic processing. The club will go on, interesting members in taking and making better pictures.

Both Mr. Nutting and Mr. Pierce have generously aided the club this year.

Radio Club

Secretary and Treasurer—William McPherson
Chief Engineer—George Mitchell

The Radio Club have participated in many activities during the past year. The boys used the public address system at the school assemblies, basketball games, banquets, and at shows in the auditorium . The assemblies and basketball games served as a training ground for the new and inexperienced members. Through this work the members acquired considerable experience and gained a knowledge of radio principles and equipment. This year the club had the assistance of Mr. Pollard, a new member of the faculty.

The Science Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Bruce, accomplished two very important tasks this year. The first was the cleaning and rearranging of the valuable rock collection on the second floor near 221. The individual exhibits were taken to the chemistry laboratory, washed, labeled and cataloged. The second task wa the intensive study of unusual exothermic reactions which included thermit welds ing, fire under water, and many other phenomena.

Taken as a whole, this was a very interesting year for the members, and one that resulted in real improvements within the school.

During the past school year, the Stagecraft Club has been under the able direction of Mr. Edgar Bruce, one of the new faculty members, who kindly consented to take over the club. The club members seem very enthusiastic about their work on and about the stage.

These boys work at every assembly or school production and on outside jobs for which they receive pay. This year the boys successfully erected four different settings for Drama Night and practically made a new set for the Senior Play.

Led by Captain Dick Benirowski the team placed second in the Essex County League, then went on to capture the North Shore Danvers Tournament Championship, and finally were invited to compete in the Tech Tournament at M. The Boys' Rifle Club of 1940-41 offered many opportunities to its members. This year, in addition to being allowed to go down to the range to shoot and to practice, the boys were given the privilege of attending the New England Sportsman Show.

Through persistent practice, many of the boys acquired a very good aim in shooting and earned high scores.

Such interest was aroused in the boys for this sport that it was suggested that an out-door range be planned and made ready for use in the spring.

At the meetings the girls were entertained by various speakers who gave demonstrations or showed movies on sports, health, etc. Miss Teague also showed some very interesting films.

One of the most outstanding programs was a winter fashion show given by several members of the club.

Some of the elub aetivities, sueh as bieyeling, hiking, bowling and girls' basketball, field hoekey and badminton were better organized this year than ever before.

Outside activities of various groups of the elub members were roller-skating, a snow train trip, and parties.

Mueh of the sueeess of this elub has been due to the enthusiasm and resoureefulness of Miss Teague.

The Season

Although Beverly started off with a defeat from Peabody, the State Girls' Basketball Champions, our first team made an out standing come-back, defeating the Peabody girls a month later in the return game. In this game, Captain Dot Naugler scored highest for Beverly.

Miriam Enos was high scorer for first team, with a total of over 60 points and single game honors with 16 pionts Vs. Manchester—February 4th.

Greatest improvement over last year:

Forward: Edith Swanson, a Junior on 2nd team who helped 1st team more than once.

Guard: Ruth Conant, a senior who gained a permanent 1 st team position with a year's less experience than the others.

Greatest improvement during the year was shown by a senior:

Forward—Miriam Enos.

Beverly won 6 out of 10 games or 60 per cent

This year for the first time in many years B.H.S. has had a really active and organized girls' field hockey team, which competed with several outside schools. Although coming in with no wins, our girls, who were stiff opposition for the more experienced players, showed themselves capable of cooperation and ability.

All in all, this year's Field Hockey Season for B.H.S. should contribute a substantial start for this sport, which may become one of those leading for the girls of good old B.H.S.
